

By this point in INLS 161, you should know the following:

When I ask, “Have you committed that?” or say “Now commit your changes,” you should instinctively do this:

```
git add -v --all *
```

```
git commit -a -m “[SOME COMMIT MESSAGE]”
```

```
git push
```

By this point in INLS 161, you should know the following:

When I ask, “Have you committed that?” or say “Now commit your changes,” you should instinctively do this:

```
git add -v --all *
```

```
git commit -a -m “[SOME COMMIT MESSAGE]”
```

```
git push
```